JEWISH NEW YEAR

Orthodox Hebrews Observe the Day Religiously and Enter Upon Period of Atonement.

THEY REPENT OF THEIR SINS.

Alisit Neighbors and Make Amends for Wrongdoing - How You Kippur and Feast of Booths Are Celebrated.

The present season is an important one in the Jewish calendar, the Jewish New Year, or Rosh Bashonah, beginning to-morrow, and ushering in the year 1661 of Hebrew chronology. Following the New Year come several other important holidays of which are the Your Kippur, or day of atone ment, and the Succoth, or feast of the

These days mean a great deal in a religious way to the orthodox Hebrew, the services with which they are in reduced being those which have existed for centuries to the Joseph shurch. The festivals are also observed in the reformed Hebrew church, but there are certain differences in the ceremonial of the two congregations.

Booths.

The New Year will be usheded in to-night and Monday morning by the services prescribed in the orthodox church. The Jewish New Year is called variously the "day of remembrance," the "day of Judament" and "day of the blowing of the shefar." This last mame is derived from the custom of blowing a ram's born in the synagogues by

On New Year's Day begins the ten days of atmember which exist in the Hebrew church. In this time all the orthodox Hecharch. In this time all the orthodex He-brews are told to forsive the sins of their neighbors, at the same time repeating of their own sins. It is a belief among the Jews that their own sins cannot be for-given until they are forgiven by their neighbors, and on this account there is a general visiting of one another among the orthodox, saking each other's pardon for any sin which has been consciously or un-consciously committed.

any sin which has been consciously of the consciously committed.

Yom kippur is observed among the plous by a feast, which hasts all day, neither food nor water being allowed to pass the figs. Four days after there is the least of Successit, when every orthodox Jew builds a but of branches in the yard and eats and drinks there, the most plous even sleeping there. During this least they while the synagogue, bearing branches in their bands of the pain tree, of the myrtic, of the willow and some sort of fruit tree.

There are a large number of orthodox Jews in this city, the majority living in the neighborhood of Carr, O'Failon, Seventh and Elighth streets, For the most part they observe faithfully all the ceremonals which the old fiebrew doutrine prescribes, even to the building of huts and eating and elepting therein. consciously committed.

even to the tenning of hurs and enting and sleeping therein.

There are enough Jews of this denomination in the city to supply five orthodox synagogues, one of the largest of walen is the E Natl Amoona, of which the Reverend Adolph Rosenfreter is rabbi. The rabbi was seen at his home yesterday and gave the following account of the reason for certain of the ceremonles attending the various days.

"The blowing of the shofar, or ram's hern," he said, "is contained by the Taimud. The tenson a ram's horn is thosen is in romembrance of the ram which chosen is in remembrance of the ram which was found caught. In the bushes when Abraham was about to offer up Isaac. The use of the ram's horn is, therefore, in remembrance of Isaac, without whom there would have been no Jewish people. The blowing of it is on account of the cammands which are laid upon us to remember that God rules in mercy but nose is justice, and is a call to our conscience. It is a direct command to us to recall our acts of the last year and to make atone ment for our sins.

"Youn Kippur is the day of atonement and is followed in four days by the feast of Succoth. This day is colourated in huis built of branches to show that we are st peace; that we are left alone by both man and benest. The huis we occupy are open and anyone can go in or out. On this day we carry four branches, the first of which is the point branch or islub, as it is called in hebrew. This is to signify our thankfulness for the gifts of lumber which are furnished us by the Lord. The branch of a fruit tree is to show our thankfulness for the fruit of the earth, the twig of myrtle shows our gratitude for the flowers and the branch of a fruit free is to show our thankfulness our thankfulness for the fruit of the earth, the twig of myrtle shows our gratitude for the flowers and the branch of willow expresses our thanks for the trees and grees for our cattle.

The final feast of the season is that of Sh'mini Atzarch or Conclusion, which takes place on Menday, October 18.

Cincinnati, O., Sept. 22.—Two operations have been attempted at the City Hospital within the inst two days under local anesthesis, recently employed in the mast, and which its discoverers claim is preferable to the administration of chloroform or other, for the reason that it is less cangerous and no bad after-effects result. Whether time and experience will rubstantiate this ciaim remains to be seen. The process appears rational and has much to recommend it in all operations where the sensory nerves must be decidened. The modus operandi is simple, and causats in pushing a hypodermic needle through the cartillaginous pads or joints of the vertebrae into the spinal canal. As noon as this is accomplished (and incidentally it should be started that this is not an easy matter and very painful to the patient) the cerebro-spinal fluid comes out drop by dop, showing that the needle is in its proper place.

The method was employed on Mabel Hall, aged 30, whose home is at 135 West Seventh street, and who was so 'fflicted that a minor, but painful, operation was necessary to bring her relief. The knife and other pain-producing instruments were freely used for nearly a half hour, and during all this time the girl watched the proceedings with the greatest unconcern. She did not suffer a particle of pain, and the local anaesthesia continued for an hour longer, when a knife might have been plunged into any part of her body below the waint line without her feeling it.
